I was not looking for Nancy (Donnally) Bane. She was looking for me. I happened upon Nancy as I was searching the 1880 Schedule of Defective, Delinquent, and Dependent Classes<sup>2</sup> [1880 DDD] for Ohio. The enumeration revealed that Nancy Bane, age 62, resident of Gallia County, had been a patient at the Central Ohio Institution and had had twenty-four attacks of mania, beginning at age 47. She had been kept at the institution and was discharged in 1868.<sup>3</sup> Even though she had been released from the asylum more than twelve years before and was living at home in 1880, she evidently still suffered from her illness and was therefore recorded on the 1880 DDD.

There was something about Nancy that captured my attention. Having an interest in women's medical issues of past centuries, I wondered if Nancy had been one of the many women of the nineteenth century committed to insane asylums<sup>4</sup> for ailments that today would be labeled postpartum depression and menopause. Or did she have a mental illness, such as manic depression (bipolar disease), schizophrenia, mania, dementia, or some other disorder? Who were her parents, siblings, and children? Did any of them suffer from mental illness? I was off on a research tangent, seeking a woman who was not one of my ancestors or relatives and for whom no client was subsidizing my research.

In Gallia County, Ohio, in 1880, where Nancy resided, there were fifteen males and thirteen females considered to be insane.<sup>5</sup> The population of Ohio in 1880 was slightly under 3,200,000 people, of which nearly 7,300 were labeled "insane." Most resided in asylums, but almost 2,800 lived at home, as did Nancy in that year. In Ohio, women suffered more than men from two of the most-common forms of mental illnesses:<sup>6</sup>

Women	895	676	440
Men	738	499	442

Who Was Nancy Bane?

After discovering Nancy in the 1880 DDDs, the next logical place to look for her was the 1880 population census for Gallia County, showing her and her family as follows:<sup>7</sup>

Bane, Henry D., white, male, age 61, married, farmer, born in Virginia, parents born in Virginia

Bane, Nancy, white, female, age 62, wife, married, keeps house, mark under column indicating insanity, born in Ohio, parents born in Virginia

Bane, William H., white, male, age 29, son, single, teacher, born in Ohio, father born in Virginia, mother born in Ohio

Following Nancy in the censuses, working backward and forward in time, the rest of her immediate family emerged. She had at least seven children, although by 1900 only six were still living. Also by 1900, Nancy and her husband, Henry, both in their eighties, lived separately. He was in the household of their son William, while Nancy resided with their daughter and son-in-law, Mary and John H. Price. Both Nancy and Henry's marital status was recorded as "married," and it is unlikely they divorced. They were buried side by side in the same cemetery. While there were no notations in the 1850 or 1860 censuses regarding Nancy's mental health, she was first labeled insane in 1870 and was subsequently recorded as such in 1880. No such category existed for 1900, and Nancy was dead before 1910.<sup>8</sup>

Since all of their children were born in Ohio, and the family was consistently enumerated in Gallia County, a marriage record for Henry and Nancy in that county was likely. Indeed, on 26 September 1842, Henry D. Bane married Nancy Donnally.<sup>9</sup>

<sup>6</sup> Wines, Report on the Defective, Dependent, and Delinquent Classes, xii, 39, 69. Mania, as we know it today, would be characterized by excessive excitability, exalted feelings, and delusions of grandeur. Melancholia is various forms of depression, and dementia is an irrecoverable deteriorative mental state. Other forms of mental illness noted in this report were monomania (probably what we would call an obsessive-compulsive disorder or psychosis), paresis (dementia from syphilis), dipsomania (alcoholism), and epilepsy (now known to be a physical, rather than a mental illness).

On the assumption that Donnally was Nancy's maiden name, had a Donnally died in Gallia County and named a daughter Nancy Bane in a will? But of the Donnally wills recorded there, none referenced a daughter Nancy Bane. In the 1855 will of Andrew Donnally, a daughter Nancy Donnally was named; but the Nancy who had captured my attention had been married thirteen years by the time this will was signed. It is unlikely that a father would still refer to his daughter by her maiden name. Another daughter and a son named in Andrew's will, Katherine and Peter Donnally, also left wills, in 1866 and 1860 respectively, naming their sister Nancy Donnally, further evidence that this Nancy was almost certainly unmarried.<sup>10</sup> Additionally, this Donnally family was enumerated in the 1850 census for Gallia County, with Nancy Donnally, age forty, living at home with her father Andrew and siblings Peter and Katherine.<sup>11</sup> In 1850, Nancy (Donnally) Bane was enumerated with her husband, Henry, and family.<sup>12</sup>

In the chancery court records for Gallia County, 1835-52, there was one case that involved Henry D. Bane and a John A. Donnally. It was a land foreclosure dated 18 October 1851, which also named Henry's wife, Nancy.<sup>13</sup>

Another chancery court case of particular note involved John Newton vs. John A. Donnally on 14 May 1840. In this case, a William Donnally conveyed land to his children to defraud Newton. The children of William Donnally were named in the document: John A. and Nancy, who were of full age, and William Jr., Eleanor, Sarah, Mary Ann, Philip J., Martha, Reuben G., and Marinda, all minors.<sup>14</sup>

There were two other significant cases. One involved John A. Donnally again, and a Sarah Donnally. In this case, Sarah was identified as the widow of William Donnally, who had died 1 January 1847.<sup>15</sup> The other case concerned John Newton, administrator for William Grayum, vs. James Grayum, Reuben Grayum, John Grayum, Sarah and William Donnally, Martha and Randall Russell, Mary Ann and Noah Wood, and Rachel and John Swindler. This 1839 case revolved around William Grayum, who died intestate, and the need to sell his property to pay his debts. The people named were his brothers and sisters and his widow, Rachel, who had married John Swindler.<sup>16</sup>

The 1850 census shows a further connection to the Donnallys and Banes. Living in the same household as John A. Donnally and his family was twenty-five-year-old Elizabeth Bane, born in Virginia.<sup>17</sup> Henry D. Bane, who was thirty-one in 1850, was also born in Virginia.<sup>18</sup> The Donnallys lived in Green Township, which borders Perry Township where the Banes resided.<sup>19</sup> The presumed mother of John A. Donnally and Nancy (Donnally) Bane, Sarah Donnally, age fifty-one, lived with fifteen-year-old Martha Donnally in the household next to John A. Donnally.<sup>20</sup>

A death certificate for Nancy would likely name her parents. According to a book of cemetery transcriptions for Gallia County, Nancy Bane, wife of Henry D., was born on 6 September 1818 and died 31 January 1903.<sup>21</sup> A death notice for Nancy appeared in the Gallipolis Daily Tribune, but it did not name her parents.<sup>22</sup> Statewide registration of deaths in Ohio did not begin until 1908, but Ohio law did require the registration of deaths in 1868, but this was done at the county level until 1908. Only Henry's death was entered in these records. He died a widower at the age of 85 on 23 February 1905.<sup>23</sup>

Only one local record identified Nancy's parents: a funeral home register recording her interment.<sup>24</sup> The information was supplied by Samuel Bane. The named parents were William and Sarah (Graham) Donley [sic].

In Gallia County deeds, there was only one land transaction between Henry D. Bane and the Donnallys—the one referred to in the foreclosure.<sup>25</sup> Deeds were also recorded that showed transactions between the Donnallys, James Newton, and the Grahams [Grayum]. None of them involved the Banes. Sarah Donnally, however, was awarded bounty land based on her husband's War of 1812 service. As every genealogist hopes, within the application papers for bounty land was a transcription of the family bible, which named Nancy as the daughter of William and Sarah (Graham) Donnally.<sup>26</sup>

Nancy's Commitment and More Leads to Her Family

Nancy was listed in the 1880 DDD as suffering from mania. According to medical texts of today, symptoms of mania include being elated, irritable, or hostile. Associated symptoms are delusions of grandeur, inflated self-esteem, and "racing" thoughts.<sup>27</sup> Fortunately, a record of Nancy's commitment was filed in the probate court of Gallia County.

The first inquest to determine Nancy's lunacy was held on 28 March 1867. The inquest was at the request of Dr. G.W. Livesay and Henry Bane, who sought Nancy's admission into the Central Ohio Lunatic Asylum. The court found Nancy insane and that "her being at large is dangerous to the community."<sup>28</sup> The 1880 DDD puts Nancy's discharge from this institution in 1868, so she apparently stayed between nine and twenty-one months.

The Central Ohio Lunatic Asylum was likely the Columbus State Hospital. Nancy's subsequent records state that she had been a patient in an asylum in Columbus. Organized in 1835, it was also known as the "Lunatic Asylum of Ohio." The institution could accommodate 120 patients, and it was "the first institution for the treatment of the insane west of the Alleghenies." In November 1868, the asylum caught fire and was nearly destroyed. Of the 314 patients, six died from smoke inhalation. The survivors were moved to other asylums in the state.<sup>29</sup> We do not know if Nancy had already been discharged or was taken home after the fire.

The 1880 DDD also reported that Nancy had been institutionalized at the Central Ohio Institution. Neither the Gallia County Historical Society or the Ohio Historical Society were aware of an institution known by this name. During the time of Nancy's commitment, there were two institutions in the central part of the state: the Columbus State Hospital and the Columbus Institute for the Feeble-Minded Youth. Admission books for the time period when Nancy would have been committed are available on microfilm for both facilities; however, Ohio law restricts searches of these records to the closest living relative, which I am not.<sup>30</sup>

On 5 October 1891, Henry Bane signed another affidavit, stating that he believed Nancy was insane. Another inquest was held on that date, with Dr. E.W. Parker and John H. Price testifying. (John H. Price was Nancy's son-in-law, married to her daughter Mary.) Nancy was sent to the Athens Insane Asylum.<sup>31</sup>

With this 1891 commitment, a medical certificate was also filed and gives more details on Nancy's symptoms: "talks incoherently going from one subject to another[;] no connection in her talk." Nancy was 73 at the time. She had "finished her education" and was Protestant. Her general health before her two mania attacks was good, and the recovery from her former attacks was "incomplete." According to this document, the onset of her first attack was age 59; whereas, the 1880 DDD had reported the onset began at age 47. The duration of the existing attack was four years, and no known cause was identified. Nancy had previously been treated at Columbus and Newburg. Along with acute mania, her form of disease at the present time was delusional insanity, believing that her "children have been murdered." She was also violent, noisy, and suicidal, but "tidy."<sup>32</sup>

Nancy Bane insane; treated at Columbus and Newburg twenty years ago; discharged as incurable; but was much improved; now worse. Can you admit her?

Nancy was allowed to leave the asylum on 4 July 1893 for a visit. The record does not indicate to whom she was going to visit, but no doubt it was her husband and children. The following October, Nancy was discharged from the institution as “improved.” By 23 March 1897, however, Henry Bane had signed another affidavit attesting to her insanity. Dr. E.E. Ellensworth signed an Affidavit of Recurrence of Disease, stating that Nancy, who was now a resident of Green Township, needed to undergo treatment at the asylum again.

Treatment. One has to wonder what the treatment was in the nineteenth century. If a person were not insane when entering a lunatic asylum, she or he might become so after “treatment.” Between the 1860s and the early 1900s, when Nancy was institutionalized, treatments were nothing short of experimental approaches. “Women...were subject to a range of specialized treatments that specifically focused on their reproductive organs or that were designed to modify certain undesirable behaviors.” Excitable patients, like Nancy probably was at some points, were supposedly calmed by cold baths; however, in cases of mania, warm baths were prescribed. Massage therapy was used to induce relaxation; conversely, electrical shock treatments were thought (and still are used) to reverse acute dementia.<sup>34</sup>

Nancy’s condition did not require mechanical restraints, such as straps, straitjackets, or mechanical devices. But she did require being kept in a cell or under lock and key.<sup>35</sup> “Chemical restraints in the form of sedatives became the prevailing method for subduing patients.” In particular, opiates were used to calm irritable patients, to relieve pain, and to help them sleep.<sup>36</sup> Many patients left the asylum as drug addicts.

During the late nineteenth century, treatments geared specifically for females increased. Hysteria was considered a female malady, and practically anything that might make a woman nervous or anxious—from exhaustion to dissatisfaction with her marital sex life—was capable of bringing on an attack of hysteria. Physicians’ unfounded assumptions were that psychiatric illness had its origins in gynecological problems, and thus directed their treatments at women’s reproductive organs. Women might be subjected to electrical charges applied to their uterus, for example, which lasted as long as ten minutes at a time.<sup>37</sup>

Because access to Nancy’s asylum records is not possible, we do not know her specific treatments and whether she endured such horrifying “treatments” to her illness. Nancy was finally discharged from the Athens Asylum on 13 November 1900, however, as recovered.<sup>38</sup> She died two years and two months later.<sup>39</sup>

Though not named, two of Nancy's siblings were also reported insane in Nancy's 1891 medical certificate. A sister was at the Columbus Asylum for six months and had recovered; a brother recovered at home.<sup>40</sup> But which sister and which brother? Since Nancy's male sibling was never treated outside the home, identifying him and documenting his "insanity" is more difficult. No other Donnallys, male or female, were reported on the 1880 DDD for Gallia County. It was likely, then, that the sister had been married when she was committed; thus, it was necessary to determine whom all of the Donnally sisters married, as well.

Family Summaries

WILLIAM<sup>2</sup> DONNALLY (Andrew<sup>1</sup>) was born 3 November 1793,<sup>41</sup> probably in Virginia,<sup>42</sup> and died 29 January 1847, in Arkansas, age fifty-three.<sup>43</sup> He was a house framer by trade and served as a private in the War of 1812 in Capt. Womeldorff's Ohio Militia.<sup>44</sup>

William is presumed to be the William named in the will of Andrew Donnally, dated 22 September 1855 and proved 15 December 1855: "It is my will that my son William Donnally's heirs shall have one dollar in money...."<sup>45</sup> It is further presumed that William was the son of Andrew by their proximity in Green Township, Gallia County, and the names used in the families of Andrew, William, and William's children.<sup>46</sup> Andrew Donnally was born in Ireland about 1758 and immigrated to Greenbrier County, Virginia, sometime between 1758 and 1760,<sup>47</sup> and he supposedly married Ann Robinson.<sup>48</sup>

William married SARAH GRAHAM 10 September 1815.<sup>49</sup> She was born 4 October 1797<sup>50</sup> in Virginia, the daughter of Philip and Eleanor (-?-) Graham, and was living in 1850 in Green Township, Gallia County, Ohio.<sup>51</sup>

- iv. ELEANOR was born 31 Dec. 1822<sup>72</sup> in Ohio. She married Joseph Shenk on 24 Feb. 1842 in Gallia Co.<sup>73</sup> In 1850, Mary Ann Donnally, age 17, Eleanor's sister, lived in the Shenk household.<sup>74</sup> As "Ellen" Shenk, she was named as boarding and taking care of Sarah [Donnally] Green, adjudged insane in 1865.<sup>75</sup> Issue (all b. in Ohio): John W., b. ca. 1844; Reuben G., b. ca. 1845; George W., b. ca. 1848; Martha, b. May 1850.<sup>76</sup>
- v. MARINDA was born 10 March 1825.<sup>77</sup> No further record.
- vi. SARAH was born 27 May 1827<sup>78</sup> in Ohio. There were three Sarah Donnallys who married in Gallia County, but she is the one who married Lemuel Green on 23 Oct. 1850.<sup>79</sup> This is supported by this couple's proximity in the 1850 census to the household of Nancy and Henry Bane; the Greens lived next door, and the enumeration confirms they were married within the census year.<sup>80</sup> Additionally, "Ellen" [Donnally] Shenk was listed as boarding and taking care of a Sarah Green, who had been adjudged insane on 22 Sept. 1865 in Gallia County.<sup>81</sup> The Greens were not found in the 1860 census index, but they were found living in Perry Township, Gallia County, in 1870. Though there was no indication in the 1850 or 1870 censuses that Sarah suffered from mental illness, one of her sons, Philip, born about 1853, was labeled "insane" in 1870.<sup>82</sup> The Greens evidently moved from Ohio by 1880, since they were not found in the published, every-name census index for that year,<sup>83</sup> nor were they found in a page-by-page search of the townships of Perry, Harrison, and Green in Gallia Co.<sup>84</sup> Issue (all b. in Ohio): William, b. ca. 1852; Philip, b. ca. 1853; John, b. ca. 1857; Mary, b. ca. 1859.<sup>85</sup>
- vii. PHILIP GRAHAM was born 18 January 1830.<sup>86</sup> Little is known about Philip. He was not located on any censuses, nor was he found in marriage or land records for Gallia County. Philip witnessed a land transaction between his brothers John A. Donnally and William Donnally in September 1848.<sup>87</sup> In February 1851, Philip, then a resident of Gallia Co., deposed that he was with his father, William Donnally, when he died in Arkansas.<sup>88</sup>

- x. REUBEN GRAHAM was born 17 March 1837, died 31 August 1840.<sup>94</sup> He was buried in Centenary Cemetery, Green Township, Gallia County, Ohio.<sup>95</sup> This was shortly after the 14 May 1840 court case in which he was named.

NANCY<sup>3</sup> DONNALLY (William<sup>2</sup>, Andrew<sup>1</sup>) was born 6 September 1818 in Ohio.<sup>96</sup> She died 31 January 1903, presumably in Gallia County, Ohio.<sup>97</sup>

Nancy married HENRY D. BANE on 26 September 1842 in Gallia County, Ohio.<sup>98</sup> A farmer, Henry was born 13 September 1819 in Blacksburg, Virginia, and died of pneumonia, 23 February 1905 in Hilton, Harrison Township, Gallia County, Ohio. He was the son of Thomas and — Bane.<sup>99</sup> Henry made his will on 10 January 1905; it was entered into probate on 27 February 1905. The following children were named: John Bane, Robert R. Bane, Mrs. Lucetta J. Thorn, Mrs. Mary A. Price, and Samuel A. Bane.<sup>100</sup> Henry and Nancy were living separately by 1900.<sup>101</sup>

Their son, Robert R. Bane, wrote about his parents in 1917 in his autobiography. About his parents, he wrote:

My dear old father, Henry D. Bane, was a most remarkable man. He was born in 1819 near Blacksburg, Va.<sup>102</sup> His parents were poorest of poor. He went to school only forty-five day[s] and wore a tow shirt and took a chunk of corn bread and a jug of buttermilk for his noonday lunch. Still he realized the importance of a good education and spared no pains, making many sacrifices to educate his children.... He was one of the most uncomplaining men I ever knew....

My mother...was most untiring in the multiplicity of household duties falling to her care in those pioneer days. She added largely to the family income by the sale of butter, eggs, poultry and soap, and other products so much in demand in those early days of the Civil War. She was a great sufferer for the last forty years of her life.<sup>103</sup>

Conclusion

Based on Nancy's commitment papers, it is clear that she was afflicted with a mental disorder. She also had an unidentified brother and a sister, Sarah (Donnally) Green, who suffered from mental illness, indicating possible genetic origins, although we do not know what diagnosis was given to her siblings. Nancy also had a nephew, Philip Green son of Sarah, who suffered from undisclosed mental health problems.

Although much of my curiosity was satisfied from researching Nancy and her family, I still wonder about how her family and descendants might view her. Would her illness be looked upon with sympathy or shame? Would she be considered a skeleton in the family closet? To me, as with any of our ancestors, her life deserves to be remembered and written about. Nancy caught my attention, perhaps so her story could be told.

<sup>132</sup> This child would have to have been born and died between the 1860 and 1870 censuses. A death was recorded in Harrison Twp., Gallia Co. for a Rebecca Bane, age 9, no parents listed, who fits the known information. Gallia Co., Ohio, Probate Court, Deaths 1:4, FHL 317663. The Banes lived in Harrison Twp. in 1860 and 1870 where this child died.
